NAIROBI, Kenya, Dec. 19—
British troops have destroyed all Fascist supplies and buildings along the Italian Somaliland frontier in the vicinity of Elwak.
British general headquarters announced today.

The mechanized forces carried back to Kenya large quantities of Italian ammunition, thirteen small guns, and two light machineguns.
The British troops were unmolested on their return trip by the fleeing Italians.

CAIRO, Dec. 19—Heavy fighting raged around Italy's important Libyan coastal base of Bardia today as mechanized British shock troops punctured powerful fortifications protecting the town.
While large numbers of Fascist troops fled westward toward Tobruk and Derna, other Italian rear guard detachments put up a despite resistance in the teeth of withering British fire.

Advanced British mechanized units, supported by artillery which constantly pounded the city, brought utmost pressure to bear on the Italians and at some points fierce hand-to-hand combats were in progress.

Captives Provide Problem

Reports received in Cairo said the number of Italian prisoners taken by the British was swelling to such an extent that the captives were presenting a "serious problem" to the advancing British forces.

Latest dispatches from the battle zone said the British pierced the Bardia forts and were fight-

F. D.'s Lend-Lease Plan Causes Anger In Reich

BERLIN, Dec. 19—President Roosevelt's plan to lend or lease huge quantities of war materials to Britain brought the retort in informed German quarters today that the American president is "playing with

It appeared that the Nazis may take issue with President Roosevelt openly through the medium of the German press.

BRITISH TO MAKE MORE DEALS FOR AMERICAN GOODS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau today disclosed that President Roosevelt has authorized the British purchasing mission to go ahead with negotiations for several billion dollars worth of American war materials, but not to close any deals until congress approves the executive's lease-and-lend plan.

Acting on the President's instructions, Morgenthau said that he, himself, had conveyed this word to the British and that in return they had handed him a master list of their requirements.

The treasury secretary added that the British would suspend signing of contracts—with the single exception of purchase of 60 new merchant ships now being built in this country for them—and would make no new ones until congress acts.

Simultaneously, official quarters revealed that in addition to the 60 vessels, a cash purchase of 50 other cargo ships is expected to be made before the week end by British interests. Some of the 50 may be Danish vessels now tied up in American ports which their Danish owners are anxious to sell.

SPEEDING TRAIN AND FREIGHT HIT NEAR TAMPA, FLA.

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 19—One man was killed and several other persons were injured—none believed seriously—today when the Seaboard Railroad's passenger train, the "Sunbeam," and a freight train on the Atlantic Coastline railroad collided at a crossing near Zephyr Hills, Fla., according to word received by the Atlantic line's office in Tampa.

The man killed was said to be the engineer on the Seaboard train, but his name could not be learned. The accident occurred about 40 miles from Tampa.

JUDGE'S DECREE AIDS GAMBLING ON RACE HORSES

CHICAGO, Dec. 19—Interstate transmission of horse racing news was declared legal today in a federal court decision that gave the federal government a setback in its war on gambling.

Judge William H. Holly declared the transmission of racing news from state to state does not violate the Federal Lottery Law, and thereby reopened to book-makers the opportunity to receive their race news by telegraph or telephone wires.

NEED FOR DRAFT RULING CITED BY CUYAHOGA UNITS

CLEVELAND, Dec. 19—Although most Cleveland Draft Boards are placing men whose wives are self-supporting in Class 1-A as available for immediate army duty there still remained today a wide divergence of opinion over whether the action would not break up homes.

The lack of uniformity may result in a meeting early next month of board officials, Lieut. Commander C. D. Finn, state draft office liaison officer said, because some draft boards feel that classification of married men with working wives in 1-A may destroy family units.

TARGETS ON HAND FOR RIFLE CLUB MEMBERS

One thousand official 50-foot rifle targets and 500 pistol targets for members of the Pickaway County Rifle and Pistol Club were received Thursday, James Shea, president of the club announced, as construction work on the range, located on the third floor of the city building, neared completion. Three-eighth inch steel bridge plates have been obtained for constructing a "bullet catcher" behind the targets.

JAPS INFORMED U. S. READY FOR DIRECT ACTIONS

Americans Will Back Up
Interests In East,
Grew Declares

DIPLOMATS SURPRISED

Admiral, On Way To Begin
Washington Duties, In Envoy's Audience

TOKYO, Dec. 19—Ambassador Joseph C. Grew today dealt a staggering blow to Japanese "tongue-in-cheek" diplomacy with the blunt warning that America now is ready to back up her interests in the Orient with direct and uncompromising action.

"America is determined to care for both its obligations and its rights," Grew said.

His speech created a major diplomatic sensation, for it was made at a farewell luncheon for Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, who will leave soon for Washington as Japanese ambassador.

Grew, in the same setting where he delivered his "straight from the horse's mouth" admonition to Japan last year, arose after a politely platitudinous speech by Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka and launched into a stiff exposition of America's attitude.

On the theme that "actions speak louder than words," the outspoken American ambassador said "there are some points on which we are in accord—our desire for peace. Other points are open to controversy. I won't deal with those in detail.

Interests Not Sentimental

"However, I think I must relieve the foreign minister of his misapprehension that the interests of the American people in China are largely sentimental."

Well-informed quarters said that Grew was even more stern in a private conversation with Matsuoka. The ambassador was said to have told the foreign minister that Japan no longer will be "bothered" by further American protests over alleged violations of American interests in China.

And Grew said, by the same token, America will not be satisfied by Japan's policies.

Grew's declaration, which presumably had the blessing of the administration in Washington, came after Matsuoka reaffirmed that Japan will "remain loyal" to Italy and Germany. The foreign minister asked America to use "common sense" and keep out of the European war or any clash with Japan in the Pacific.

The American diplomat struck back quickly with his illusion-shattering declaration.

The funeral will be Friday at 9 a. m. in St. Joseph's Catholic Church, the Rev. Fr. Francis J. Connor officiating. Burial will be in St. Joseph's Cemetery by the Albaugh Co. Pall bearers will be Fred Smith, E. L. Tolbert, Philip W. Glenn, Forrest Storts, Albert Reed and Philip Smith.

ROTARY CLUB MEMBERS BECOME YOUTHS AGAIN

Fifty Rotarians pretended they were boys again Thursday noon in the American Hotel Hurricane, shooting at each other with toy pistols, blowing toy horns and harmonicas and pushing all sorts of things with wheels around the floor as they celebrated their annual Christmas Fun and Frolic party.

Each member of the club took a toy for some other member, the toys being passed out by Santa Claus Fred Clark.

At the close of the meeting the toys were turned over to the fire department for distribution to Circleville's needy children next Tuesday.

NEED FOR SEVEN DAY WEEK CITED BY UNION CHIEF

DETROIT, Dec. 19—Declaring that "these days our production capacity is more important than our first line of defense," Ford A. Lamb, executive secretary of the American Society of Tool Engineers, said today industry must go on a seven day week basis if the defense program is to move forward speedily.

"It is time," Lamb said, "for us to stop jockeying around and put our shoulder to the wheel. Men who are being drafted are not being drafted for a 40-hour week. And if they once get into the trenches there isn't going to be any question as to whether they should or should not work overtime."

He said that "our Army and Navy will be helpless" unless some plan to speed production is quickly worked out.

(Editor's Note: Last Monday, Chester A. Cahn, secretary of the Automotive Tool and Die Manufacturers Association, said the national defense program must be considered of "prime importance" by manufacturers and if necessary manufacturing plants must operate seven days a week.)

"Our unemployment," Lamb continued, "consists largely of unskilled help. And you cannot take an unskilled man from the unemployment ranks and place him on a highly skilled job in machine production. Consequently it is necessary that some sort of an overtime basis for skilled workers be mapped."

AFRICAN FRONT SUCCESS LAUDED

Many Cabinet Members Believe Reich
May Be Massing Forces For Sudden
Attack On Isles; Defenses Ready

LONDON, Dec. 19—A new warning that the danger of a German invasion of Britain is "ever present" was voiced by Prime Minister Winston Churchill today.

In a lengthy statement to the House of Commons on the progress of the war, Churchill served notice on Italy that the British offensive in North Africa had barely begun.

British losses in the western desert offensive are less than 1,000 men, the prime minister said.

Frequently cheered when he told of British successes on the African front, Churchill cautioned his hearers against undue optimism. Stressing the "disquieting" extent of British shipping losses and the omni-present menace of invasion, Churchill gave the country this new watchword:

"Our vigilance must be unceasing."

LONDON, Dec. 19—Britain's "holiday" from German bombing assaults passed the 48-hour mark today, but authoritative quarters in London felt it meant a "German blow—somewhere."

Meanwhile, RAF bombing attacks on objectives in both Germany and Italy during the night were announced by the British Air Ministry.

British circles said they believed cessation of Nazi air attacks on Britain meant Chancellor Hitler is conserving his resources in planes, aviators, gasoline and oil for a speedy, surprise attack, but added that where or when it will occur is "anybody's guess."

They pointed out, however, that several British cabinet ministers have strongly warned Britain that an attempted German invasion must be expected, possibly earlier than heretofore anticipated. But they added:

"We are prepared on all fronts."

The Air Ministry stated that when the RAF attacked Mannheim last night they found smoke

"It is time," Lamb said, "for us to stop jockeying around and put our shoulder to the wheel. Men who are being drafted are not being drafted for a 40-hour week. And if they once get into the trenches there isn't going to be any question as to whether they should or should not work overtime."

INQUIRY STARTS IN CRASH FATAL TO SIX AIRMEN

March Field Investigators
Trying To Learn Cause
Of Bomber's Fall

ALL BODIES CHARRED

Routine Flight Is Ended
By Mishap On Mountain
In California

MARCH FIELD, Cal., Dec. 19.—March Field Army Air Corps authorities today intensified their investigation of the crash of a huge four-motored bomber, in which three officers and three enlisted men were killed.

The big "flying fortress" dove against the mist-shrouded slopes of Marion peak in the San Jacinto mountains in the San Bernardino National Forest, near Riverside yesterday.

The victims, all of whose bodies were recovered, were:

First Lieut. Harold J. Turner, Corning, Iowa, pilot.
First Lieut. Donald T. Ward, Los Angeles, co-pilot.
First Lieut. Vernon McCauley, Riverside, Cal., flight engineer.
Sgt. Thomas F. Sweet, Riverside, engineer.

Corp. Frank J. Jirak, Salem, Ore., assistant engineer.
Private James C. Sessions, Bismarck, Ariz., radioman.

Crews from March Field and sheriff's deputies from Riverside who hurried to the scene of the wreck encountered great difficulty in bringing out the bodies because of rugged terrain and adverse weather conditions. All bodies were charred and were found in the wreckage.

The time of the crash was set at 10:45 a. m., when residents of idyllic and Pine Cove, nearby settlements, heard an explosion after seeing the plane overhead.

Barely Missed House
Harris Merchant of Pine Cove said the plane "barely missed" his house as it swung low over the mountain slope and then cut a quarter-mile swath through the trees until it crashed.

Apparently the mountain had loomed out of the mist so suddenly the pilot did not have time to cut the switch, for the plane burst into flames as soon as it struck. Wreckage was strewn over a half-mile area, one of the four motors being found 100 feet away. Several large trees were clipped off in the fatal plunge of the ship.

The plane, a B-17, was on a routine training flight when the disaster occurred. It had been cruising leisurely through broken clouds at about 8,000 feet and was about 30 miles from March Field when it hit the mountain.

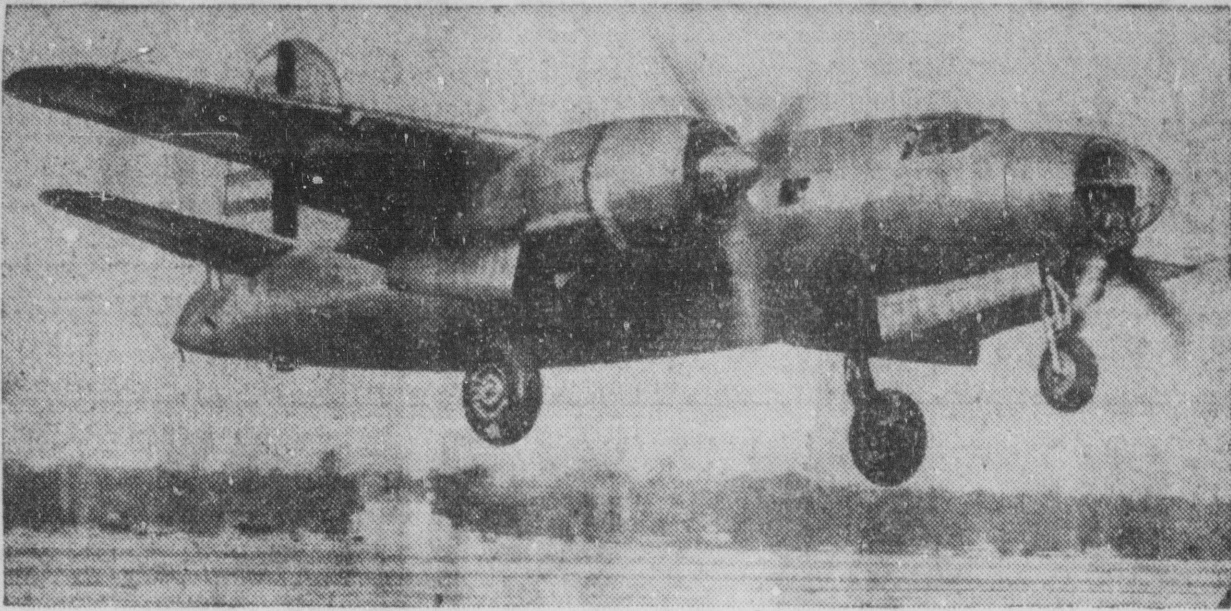

Motors Missing
Some witnesses said they believed the plane motors were "missing" just before the crash, but Army authorities would not comment on this report.

Lieut. Turner, pilot, was an Army Air Corps reserve with more than six years' flying experience and a nephew of former Governor Dan W. Turner of Iowa.

All the crew members were attached to the 93rd Bombardment Squadron of the 19th Bombardment Group.

Three things needed in our armament program: Speed, Speed and Speed.

ASHVILLE

By S. D. Fridley
Ashville, Phone 79

Ernest Martin has for repair in his workshop a piano case much the worse of the wear all because it refused to stay put. A piano of one of the more expensive kind was removed from Groveport to the Lutheran parsonage at Lithopolis by an open flatbed truck. The instrument, unsupported, toppled from the truck to the roadway sliding a considerable distance before coming to a stop. The movers and the truck came through without injury, the piano taking all the raps. It was a lucky getaway. The piano action was but little damaged, and after awhile when the pieces are all back in place again, that Mrs. Rev. Boles at Lithopolis parsonage will own a really good piano with a lot worse ride than Paul Revere ever made.

—Ashville—
Tomorrow, when we get 'em all gathered in and put together, we'll be giving a list of the several Sunday schools holding Christmas exercises—the which, when where of it.

Met Wednesday evening at the postoffice lobby a perfectly fine and friendly youngster, a 7th grader from the South Bloomfield school here waiting for, to him, some important mail from Santa Claus, we'd guess. But isn't the important part of it. He told us how the school graders over there had been wallopin' good and strong, our grade youngsters here. And that's something else again to be looked after. That Messick, Schiff, Hudson bunch will have to be pepped up or something. Can't be licked around like that.

ASHVILLE SCHOOL NEWS
All the lower eight grade rooms now have their Christmas trees and decorations up and it begins to look as though Christmas itself is not far away. In fact it has been stated on good authority that Santa will visit all the rooms Friday of this week with a treat for all good boys and girls.

The lower four grades plan to put on a joint program at 1:00 p. m., Friday in the auditorium. The welcome will be given by Suzanne Dailey of grade II. This will be followed by a playlet by members of the First grade and a "Radio Program" of recitations, dialogues, songs, etc. by Grade two with Nancy Hedges as the Announcer.

The Third grade will offer suitable carols, recitations, etc. and the Fourth grade will present a Christmas pageant with the usual songs and scenes connected with such.

The upper four grades will put on individual programs of their own which no doubt will prove of interest to parents and friends of the pupils taking part, while the Junior class of the High School will have the regular monthly assembly program in the auditorium following the lower grade session mentioned above.

KIN OF COUNTY SEAT MAN KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

The body of a man killed in Columbus Tuesday was identified Wednesday evening as that of David E. Stapleton, 73, half-brother of Ray Stapleton of Circleville.

He was pronounced dead at Mt. Carmel Hospital. Both legs were broken and he suffered internal injuries and possible fracture of the skull.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Nora Penwell, 293 Yale Avenue, and Miss Eva Jean Stapleton of Harrisburg, O.; four granddaughters and the half-brother, Ray Stapleton of Circleville.

Funeral arrangements will be made later by the Woodyard company.

More than 80 students will take part.

YULE DRAMA

A story suggested by the town of Santa Claus, Indiana, will be the Yule presentation of "This Land of Ours" over WLW, Sunday at 10:30 p. m.

The story involves a man who through a strange series of circumstances, centering in the town of Santa Claus, finds the course of his life altered. The story is fictitious, using background material about the town.

Though only 44 people live there, Santa Claus, Indiana, each year handles a huge volume of mail. Last Christmas 14 assistants were given full-time jobs to aid Postmaster Oscar L. Phillips in handling the deluge of packages and letters which find their way to the town.

PIGEON FOUND

Nine minutes after H. R. Gross had concluded a newscast over WLW, the owner of a lost carrier pigeon had been found.

Gross included in his broadcast that Miss Georgia Smith, residing near Kingston, 100 miles from Cincinnati, had found a pigeon, bearing a numbered leg band, which evidently had been injured in a storm.

The newscaster had no sooner broadcast the number than Homer Weimer president of the Cincinnati Carrier Pigeon Racing Association, called to verify the number. A few minutes later he called back and said the bird belonged to Harry Staat of Cincinnati.

Staat was immediately notified. He said he had released the pigeon two days previously for a practice flight, but that instead of flying near the premises, as usual, the bird took off in a northeasterly direction. It is believed the pigeon became bewildered in a snowstorm.

AFTER-HARVEST
SURVEY SHOWS
HIGH CROP YIELD

Production in Nation Goes
Above Expectations
Of Experts

RECORD IS OUTSTANDING

Distribution Good; Corn Off
Just Little In Check
With 1939 Report

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Production of many crops exceeded earlier expectations, the Crop Reporting Board said today in its after-the-harvest survey. The yields per acre averaged higher than in any previous year and total crop production—on an acreage smaller than a few years ago—has been larger than in any year except 1937, it was announced.

Crop production, the board said, although only slightly above the average of the last three remarkable seasons, appeared high as compared with production in previous years and particularly high as compared with averages for periods that include the drought years, 1934 and 1936. Unlike the big crops of 1937, which came when reserves were greatly depleted, the 1940 crops were harvested after three good years.

The 1940 yield record is outstanding, the board said. Tobacco, for example, averaged 965 pounds per acre or 45 pounds higher than last year. Potato yields averaged just above 130 bushels per acre. Cotton averaged 252 pounds or over half a bale per acre, although this was only a few pounds above the excellent yields of the last three seasons.

Production Hits Average

With only a few "bumper" crops in 1940, production is well distributed, it was explained. The total production of grain is about the same as the average of the last three years. The wheat crop of 117,000,000 bushels is about normal and is ample for present requirements.

The production of corn for all purposes in 1940 is estimated at 2,449,200,000 bushels. This is 6 percent smaller than the 1939 crop of 2,602,133,000 bushels, but seven percent larger than the ten year average—1929-38.

In Iowa where timely rains at the critical period of tasseling and where a rainfall permitted maturity of the late planted crop, the

On Trial in Love Shooting

MRS. Elizabeth Pettit (left) and Mrs. Otis Cumberledge, sisters, are shown behind the bars of their cell at Waynesburg, Pa., as they prepared to go on trial for the "love shooting" of Mrs. Ada Hubbard Headley. The state will attempt to prove that the sisters staged a fake holdup at the Headley garage, in the course of which Mrs. Headley was shot five times. The state charges the shooting was held to Mrs. Headley out of the way so that her husband would be free to wed Mrs. Cumberledge.

yield was only one bushel below that of last year. Illinois corn suffered so severely from July and early August drought the yield in that state was eight bushels below that of last year. The drought damage was more severe in Indiana and Ohio, however, where yields were 14.5 and 12.5 bushels, respectively, below those of 1939. Michigan and Minnesota yields were also considerably below those of last year.

The wheat crop was estimated at 816,689,000 bushels, divided as follows:

Winter wheat, 589,151,000 bushels; all spring wheat, 227,547,000 bushels; durum, 34,776,000 bushels; other spring wheat, 192,771,000 bushels.

Production of other major crops was estimated as follows:

Oats, 1,235,628,000 bushels. Barley, 309,235,000 bushels. Rye, 401,601,000 bushels. Buckwheat, 6,350,000 bushels. Flaxseed, 31,127,00 bushels. Rice, 52,754,000 bushels. Hay, all tame, 86,312,000 tons. Peanuts, 1,611,635,000 pounds. White potatoes, 397,722,000 bushels. Sweet potatoes, 61,998,000 bushels. Tobacco, 1,376,471,000 pounds.

"The Gentleman from Indiana"

FORTY-TWO UNITED STATES

Once in a blue moon the United States Supreme Court hands down a decision of truly fundamental importance, not to lawyers alone, nor any large group, but to all the people of all the states.

Such a decision is expected shortly. It is the famous New River case, or United States versus Appalachian Electric Power Company. It belongs in the category of the Dred Scott decision, which helped bring on the Civil War. It will tell whether the onward rush of national power over state sovereignty has been arrested, or whether the States have no constitutional rights which Washington, D. C. is required to respect.

So important is this case that 42 States of the Union, by their attorney generals, have filed briefs in opposition to the claim made by the federal government. It is probable that no such lines have been drawn since Pickett's charge at Gettysburg.

The case is easy to understand. Under the Constitution the federal government has power to regulate commerce among the States. A river is an artery of commerce if it is navigable. But navigable rivers are fed by non-navigable rivers.

And these by streams. And these by brooks. And these by springs. All true. The question, then, is this: Granted the power to regulate commerce on navigable interstate rivers, including flood control, can the federal government then assume control of the non-navigable rivers and streams? If so, it can go anywhere. There is no practical limit to its authority. And in such case, the States lose control of their own waters for irrigation, recreation, water supply, or power development, either by the states, or their municipalities, or by private licensees. Control water, and you control states.

If the theory urged by the federal government is sustained by the Supreme Court, then a State might be prevented from deciding how much water shall be used by its own citizens for irrigation, or a city from building a reservoir for drinking water, fire-fighting, or sewage, on the ground that the water so used would diminish the flow of water five hundred miles down stream and thus "interfere" with a sand scow license by Uncle Sam.

In such case States would live at the mercy and favor of the federal government. And if they vote right, they may get some favors!

It is this constant and insidious reaching for power over the waters of the States that on other occasions has roused the ire of such courageous public men as Governor "Red" Phillips of Oklahoma, Governor Aiken of Vermont, and Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming.

In this instance the attorney generals of 42 United States are fighting for their people in the only forum left since Appomattox—the courts. And when it is considered that many of these states have democratic Governors, now resisting this encroachment, the significance of this case is thrown into bold relief. Also, the importance of a Supreme Court that is not the tool of any President, nor of any governor.

Not only water. But factories, forests, petroleum, iron, coal. Under the war and national defense powers of Congress, you can make a house-that-Jack-built argument that would forbid a farmer in Ohio to cut a fence post, or firewood in his timber lot without a license from some Secretary Ickes, Fall, or Ballinger. As in Germany today. And believe me, Washington is filled with New Deal lawyers who make that argument.

The New River runs through Virginia and West Virginia. Only two States are immediately involved, but because of the important principle at stake forty other States have joined with them.

When the Supreme Court decides this case, we shall know whether the Tenth Amendment in practical effect has been erased from the Constitution. That Amendment provides that "the powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people." Wrap up a THRILL in this Year's Holly Wreath!

*Buick SPECIAL Sedan, $1052. White sidewall tires extra.

SUPPOSE, come Christmas morning, you took your wife to the front door, pointed out through the holly wreath — and there let her see a brand-new Buick standing at the curb!

A thrill? You bet — for the whole family!

Out of the question? Not at all. Look:

We're not suggesting that you add the cost of a new Buick to your Christmas budget.

But you probably will be buying a new car soon and we are simply proposing that you buy it now, a few months ahead of time — and make this a holiday long to be remembered.

We're suggesting that there's no time like the present to get back of that big FIREBALL Eight — no time like right now to start piling up gasoline mileage economies that run as high as 10% or 15%.

There's no time like holiday time to dress up yourself (and family) in smart, fresh Buick aerodynamic styling, or to introduce your brood to the roomy comfort of this Buick-eradled traveler.

You can do that—if you act promptly.

A trial ride to give you a hint as to what

Buick can do — a little figuring on your present car's worth (at today's trade-in values, not next spring's)—a little working out of convenient terms — and you'll have a FIREBALL to celebrate this Christmas!

How about it? It's one thing your wife would never expect — and just about the finest gift any man could give his family!

MAN, 42, HUNTED FOR GRILLING IN TENEMENT FIRE

Cincinnati Seeking Clues To Explosion Fatal To 31 Persons

BLAST SOURCE TRACED

Operator Of Appliance Shop Gone; Explosive Liquid Rumored

CINCINNATI, Dec. 19—Puzzled authorities today continued their search for Elmer Campbell, 42, missing tenant, in the hope he might be able to shed some light on the explosion that wrecked two three-story tenement buildings, killing 31 persons.

Meanwhile, City Manager C. O. Sherrill said it had been "pretty definitely established" that the blast originated in a clothing store in one of the buildings. An earlier theory placed the source as the appliance shop operated by Campbell and his partner, Joseph Koebe, 43, who was killed.

City employees resumed the work of excavating debris on the possibility that Campbell's body may be buried in it. Other officials searched the city for him.

Koebe's widow told Coroner Frank M. Coppock, Jr., at an inquest that there was no truth in reports that her husband had been experimenting with a highly explosive liquid.

As the investigation continued, the Federal Bureau of Investigation was asked to analyze shattered bits of brick and mortar to determine the origin of the blast. Experts on explosives asserted that only a huge quantity of any known explosive could have caused such extensive damage. Both brick structures were blown to bits. One cellar door was catapulted 400 feet.

Kentucky Possemen Kill Desperado in Gun Fight

MIDDLESBORO, Ky., Dec. 19—Hunted for two days for the killing of a Middlesboro deputy sheriff and the wounding of another officer, Clyde Buchanan, an itinerant basket weaver, was shot and killed today when he tried to shoot it out with a posse.

Buchanan was located by a posse early today, reclining by a campfire in a dense woods a quarter of a mile from Wheeler, Va., which is just 10 miles east of Middlesboro.

Buchanan's son, 15-year-old Clyde, Jr., who fled with his father on Tuesday, was seized last night in front of a Wheeler store where earlier in the day he had made a few purchases. It was from the boy, officers said, that Buchanan's whereabouts were learned.

The posse, comprised of 20 armed men, closed in around Buchanan, 40, as he rested by a small fire. They called on him to surrender, but instead he opened fire. A fusillade from the possemen felled him after he had fired one shot. He was rushed to a hospital in Middlesboro where he died.

Buchanan's flight began on Tuesday, after he shot and killed Deputy Sheriff George W. Fisher, 63, wounded Middlesboro Police Chief George Minton, 48, seriously, and shot Patrolman P. L. Perry through the hand.

The officers had gone to Buchanan's trailer, parked outside the town, with a warrant charging him with theft of $2,500 worth of furs and jewels in Virginia. He pretended to submit to arrest and the officers, expecting no trouble, stepped into the trailer.

Buchanan suddenly jumped on Chief Minton, grabbed his gun, and began shooting. Fisher was killed instantly.

The itinerant fled with his son, and a widespread search for the pair was organized quickly. Airplanes and bloodhounds were used by possses to scour the Cumberland mountain region in what was termed Kentucky's greatest manhunt.

ARMING

BRITAIN is putting "guns before butter." That is a phrase worth remembering on both sides of the Atlantic. It means that the British government and people are willing to deprive themselves of food in order to get war materials. They apply this principle literally, dispensing with food they could import from America in order to save cargo space for war materials on which their national life depends.

America is not beleaguered like Britain—not yet. But here is a lesson that should be taken to heart. We ourselves need guns and munitions of many kinds almost as much as the British do. If we dawdle about it, we may find ourselves in three or six months where Britain is now. It is already past the time when we should have taken our rearmament program, for Britain and for ourselves, with supreme seriousness. We need longer working days and more of them.

NEWS READERS' PSYCHOLOGY

"THE sports pages," says William Lyon Phelps of Yale, "are a record of success. The front page is almost wholly a record of frustration and failure." That is why, in his opinion, newspaper readers prefer the sports pages to the news pages.

It is an interesting theory, but it wavers a little when effort is made to apply it, particularly to the comics. Success there is almost always deferred. If the hero ever manages to get out of one jam he gets into another immediately. Yet such serials are more popular than the sports pages.

The theory wavers a little more when the fans of losing teams are considered. Aren't the sports pages records of defeat for them?

The theory doesn't stand up very well even for front page news. Perhaps Mr. Phelps was only indulging in one of those generalizations which need not be true to be amusing or interesting.

A war correspondent is a fellow who thinks war "material" has to be spelled "materiel," even if the French are down and out.

"I am never satisfied with anything," observes Secretary of War Knox, "Everything is susceptible of improvement." We'll say it is!

WORLD AT A GLANCE

DESPITE ALL the national administration's efforts to prevent it, an upward tendency in a great many prices is noticeable. It isn't pronounced enough yet to be called inflation. Nevertheless Wendell Willkie suggests that inflation is what it's the beginning of. What's more, it worries New Deal administrationists.

For instance, Leon Henderson, our defense council's chief economist, is opposing it vigorously. The consumers' spokesmen and spokeswomen in our various defensive and economic units also are appealing strenuously to our wholesaler's organizations to put brakes upon any violent rise in our living costs, because naturally consumers must feel the first effects of it. And wholesalers generally profess compliant intentions. The question is, though, can they make good on them, if the bulge continues and gains greater and greater proportions?

The New Dealers' contention is that our government's deficit spending, its unprecedented national debt and the increase in its limit, asked for by Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, involve nothing but inflationary. Still, a government can overstrain its credit, in which event its money shrinks in buying power—that is, prices skyrocket.

NOT NEAR LIMIT?

Maybe we haven't reached that point yet, or a point anywhere near it.

However, we've seen it happen in other countries. A few years ago it happened throughout Germany,

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

HULL TO FAVOR LOAN

WASHINGTON—The inside story of how the career boys nearly put over the $100,000,000 credit to Fascist Spain indicates the strength of "the croquet clique" inside the State Department. This is the group which plays croquet almost every evening with Cordell Hull, and is equivalent to the "Cliveden set" in England.

As a matter of fact, it was a part of the old Cliveden clique—Lord Halifax and Sir Samuel Hoare—who started the idea of helping General Franco. Sir Samuel Hoare is now British Ambassador to Spain, and it was he who sold the idea to American Ambassador Weddell, long famous for his ability to follow rather than lead.

Lord Halifax and Hoare apparently thought it would be smart politics to get the United States to lend a hundred million dollars to Spain, in which case Britain might win a few months of Spanish neutrality and certainly could not lose—since only American money would be invested.

So Ambassador Weddell had several talks with General Franco and later sold the idea to some of his friends in the State Department, notably Assistant Secretary Breckinridge Long and James Dunn. Jimmy Dunn, adviser on political relations, today has become one of the most important figures in the State Department. For he is Cordell Hull's chief croquet partner. In fact, it is on Jimmy Dunn's lawn that many of the croquet matches take place.

So Jimmy Dunn sold the idea of the Spanish credit to his croquet partner, and for a time it looked as if Mr. Hull would put it across. It was at this point that Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles stepped into the picture. He communicated direct to the President who at that time was away on his Caribbean cruise.

Roosevelt agreed with Welles that to throw a hundred million dollars into the lap of Fascist Spain would be extremely unwise. However, a compromise finally was worked out, largely for the purpose of saving Mr. Hull's feelings, since he had already gone rather far out on a limb in favor of the Spanish credits.

Therefore the Red Cross will send a certain amount of food and medical supplies to Spain. How much this will be remains to be seen, but the croquet clique will see that it is enough to keep Franco in power despite the rising tide of discontent among the Spanish people.

NOTE—To send these shipments to Spain, Roosevelt will have to dip rather deeply into the emergency fund voted him by Congress, and for which he does not have to give any accounting.

JESSE JONES' GEOGRAPHY

Jesse Jones was holding a press conference on the new loans to Latin America. When he got through explaining about the sixty million dollar credit to Argentina, one of the newsmen asked, "Have you got any credits for Central American countries, Mr. Secretary?"

Jones paused. "Well," he said, "I'm (Continued on Page Five)

Bells Will Ring

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● Tuberculosis is worth writing about because the campaign is hopeful. The death rate has dropped 75 per cent in 40 years. It dropped 33 per cent from 1920 to 1930 and 32 per cent from 1930 to 1940. If the average decline of approximately one-third every ten years can be maintained, the tuberculosis death rate in 1950 would be 32; in 1960, 21; in 1970,

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

14; and by the year 2000, if there is any Christmas then, the Christmas bells will ring out the death knell of this ancient disease of mankind, so we hope you have purchased your Christmas seals and that you will continue to use them if you have any left even though Christmas is over.

In accomplishing this object, most of it will have to be done by public health work in deliberately rooting out cases in the population and sending them to sanatoria. This work is called case-finding.

How many sanitariums will it take? In 1938 it was estimated that there were 732 institutions in the United States with 90,000 beds which could be used for tuberculosis cases. This is 1 1/2 beds per annual death. It is estimated that a minimum of 2 beds for each annual death are needed if a good case-finding program is carried out. This will mean about 60,000 more beds than we have at present available.

Case-finding

The case-finding method is necessary because so many people with tuberculosis do not realize that they have anything the matter with them. They go on with slight symptoms, do not seek medical advice and, in fact, many cases feel better than people who are not sick at all. Only when some dramatic event occurs, such as a hemorrhage from the lungs, or the disease becomes so extensive as to cause real disability, do they realize their condition and ask for a diagnosis. A great deal of advance could be made if these people would learn to recognize their symptoms in the early stages and seek advice.

One early sign is hemorrhage from the lungs. This naturally frightens and depresses the person to whom it occurs, but it may be a blessing in disguise because it is sufficiently dramatic to make him seek medical advice, and also because it is not necessarily a sign of late tuberculosis. In fact, it may occur quite early—certainly early enough for successful treatment.

Another significant thing is pleurisy. In any pleurisy where the pain is bad enough to put the patient to bed and result in fever and disability for several days, it should be regarded as a premonitory sign of tuberculosis.

Other Early Symptoms

Other early symptoms are fatigue which is unnatural—that is, fatigue which cannot be explained by the amount of exertion or work done. Of course, cough and expectoration, afternoon fever and night sweats may be early or are likely to be late signs. There are, however, many forms of cough which are not called "cough." One is a cold that hangs on, or recurrent colds in the winter. All these demand careful examination.

Remember that in many cases the primary complex occurs in childhood but that a danger period is in adolescence when the infective, chronic form of tuberculosis of the lungs develops. The number of these cases increases through the twenties and thirties, and the mortality peak is reached during the thirties. In this age, then, the symptoms and signs which I have indicated should be of particular significance.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

G. W.—"What can be done about a hammer toe that causes a lot of trouble? Is there anything to bring action back to the toe?"

Answer—Hammer toes are held in position by strong adhesions and tendons, and exercises or other methods are not of great benefit. I believe an operation to cut the tendon and remove the deformity of the joint is the only certain method of cure.

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Deane moves into the large household of Captain Cary Essex II to become a secretary to his grandson. Nancy finds immediate antagonism on the part of Aunt Althea, the old captain's eldest daughter. When she overhears Aunt Althea talking to someone about driving her out of the house, Nancy becomes concerned. Nancy learns that Cary, her employer, has a terrific fear of the sea. Cary reads to the family the first chapters of the genealogy he is writing.

CHAPTER SIX

CARY'S FACE took on an eager expression, as the captain's voice gave the order, "Now, Jabez, bring down the sea chests from the little attic."

"Yes, sir. Will you give me the keys, sir, and where shall I put the chests?"

The captain scanned the unencumbered floor space. Although the library was large, there wasn't much unoccupied room.

"Light the fire in the room at the end of the hall and put them there. Call us when you have them all down, and, Jabez—"

"Yes, sir."

"Bring down the small mahogany desk from my room and put it with the chests."

"Yes, sir, and the keys, sir?"

Slowly the trembling hand drew out a bunch of keys attached to the massive chain which crossed his waistcoat. Shakily he detached one key and passed it to the house-

"That key has never left me for 27 years," he said slowly, after Jabez went out. "Nor has that attic room been opened since my son's chest went into it. I did not open his chest then. I couldn't; and I never thought to do so. But his log books are there, and—his face brightened; his voice lost its pathetic—"you, Cary, will make good use of them."

"I'll do my best, Granddad, I promise you that." A ring of determination was in his tone.

"Father, hadn't I better telephone down for the chauffeur to come up and help Jabez? He'll never be able to get those heavy chests down by himself." Mrs. Gould's gentle voice asked the question.

"Chauffeur! Stuff and nonsense! Send for outside help when we've two able-bodied luffers here!"

Cary rose to his feet, but the captain waved him back.

"Mark shall go," he declared testily. "That'll be his contribution to his cousin's book."

"Is Cary the fair-haired boy right now?" muttered Mark, under his breath. And, rising from his chair, "Little Mark had better be looking to his laurels."

But there wasn't a trace of resentment in his tone, and I saw that he clapped his hand, with friendly pressure, on Cary's shoulder, as he passed by on his way out.

Mark did not close the door behind him. His voice rose in merry greeting, and immediately a thick-set man, accompanied by a younger man and woman, entered. The voice with which the stranger greeted the family was familiar to him. It certainly was that of the unknown Horace.

I didn't like the sharp glance from his cold blue eyes nor the flabby clasp of his clammy hand, and I didn't like his son or daughter, either, when we were introduced. Irene Rand was beautiful, there was no denying that. Her complexion was flawless, her features superb, and when she smiled she was absolutely charming. But her green-blue eyes, as cold and hard as her father's, and the thin line into which she drew her mouth when not speaking, spoiled her for me. Proctor Rand, son of Horace, was a chip of the old block. If anything, I thought he would be more ruthless than his father.

I couldn't imagine frank genial Mark enjoying Proctor's companionship, and I took the way Cary's face lengthened at their entrance as evidence of his distaste.

"Here comes the pest!" murmured Kaye in my ear when Proctor, after bending over Janet, crossed the room to our side. She greeted him in a cool, casual manner, but, from the way the conversation went, I judged the two families were intimate if not entirely congenial.

"Where is Althea?" Mr. Rand asked, after some desultory conversation.

"She chooses to immerse herself in her own room rather than sit with us," replied the captain spirit-edly.

"Has anything untoward occurred?" persisted the other.

"Just that she won't sit and listen to a reading from Cary's book. She takes it upon herself to disapprove."

"Are you seriously intending to grant your permission for such a project, sir?" Mr. Rand leaned closer to the captain and spoke in a low tone which yet carried distinctly to where I sat. "Do you consider that wise?"

"Wise, sir? What do you mean?" demanded the captain.

"Unless such a book is handled very delicately it becomes ridiculous, is laughed at and the family name loses prestige. Have you carefully considered?" he was warning to his subject now, and the words flowed forth with a sonorous roll. He must be an inveterate speech maker on every possible occasion, in season and out.

"Have you carefully considered whether Cary has the necessary ability and er—er—finesse to put such a difficult undertaking across?" He straightened back in his chair and looked around with the pompous air of a jutting pigeon strutting his stuff before an admiring harem. But he reckoned without the captain.

"Prestige!" he snarled. "Our family name is too securely grounded upon the annals of the sea for a book, however poorly written, to dim its luster. Cary, my boy, read Horace what you have written."

Cary moved uneasily. I was sure the proposal was unwelcome to him, but the direct command of the dominant captain would be hard to evade. Cary was not at a loss for long.

"I would prefer, Granddad," he said smoothly, "to wait until I've polished it a bit more before reading it to—er—such a critic." That last I thought to be pure sarcasm. Kaye's sly nudge indicated she felt the same.

The captain looked sharply at Cary, who squarely met his gaze.

"You're right, my boy. It will be a bigger surprise when it's finished." He turned back to Mr. Rand.

"Don't allow my words to deceive you, Horace. Cary hasn't written a poor beginning. It's a smashing good one; so good I'm giving him all the old records to use."

Mr. Rand shrugged his shoulders deprecatingly.

"I am still of the same opinion. I wouldn't permit MY family to be exploited in print."

"Probably if your family had been a line of sea-farers, so that they really had something to be written about them, you wouldn't feel that way. But being a set of land-lubbers, bartering and selling all their lives, I can quite understand how you feel."

The captain's eyes were gleaming savagely under their jutting brows; his chin was thrust forward pugnaciously. Kaye gave me another nudge, and Mr. Rand swallowed convulsively.

"Quite so, quite so," he muttered, rising hastily. "I think I will join Althea for a few moments."

The conversation flowed along until his return. His florid color seemed to have paled, and his fingers twisted nervously at a coat button. He had little to say, but seemed to be listening intently to the sounds of heavy tramping in the hall.

"All ready, folks!" Mark's voice was filled with cheerful good humor. He was carefully wiping his dusty hands on his handkerchief, undreaming that a wisp of cobweb haunted itself from his right ear.

"The room's warm and we're all set. Shall I help you, Granddad?" His strong arm assisted the captain across the room, and we all trailed along behind.

The chest and desk stood in a row against the wall. The captain looked at them in silence; then he drew out his keys and detached four more. He walked to the desk, inserted the key, pulled down the flap and held out the key to Cary.

"You've seen these before. They represent everything we know about the Essex family, except for the personal papers of the sea captains. This—" he turned to the most battered of the chests, used another key and threw back the lid—"holds my father's papers."

He passed that key to Cary and stepped to the second chest.

"This was my chest all the years I went to sea," he said. "I think you will find a few things of interest there." The interior revealed a confusion of books and papers.

With shaky steps, he walked to the third chest, bent and turned the key which, with the other, he then passed to Cary.

"I don't know what is in this chest, except that it holds your father's papers." His voice shook. "I have never had the courage to go over them. You may open it."

Cary stepped forward and raised the lid. A sound of surprised expelled breaths arose all over the room. The captain staggered backward, and Cary caught his arm.

The chest was empty!

American Legion Auxiliary

Plans for the Christmas holiday activities of the American Legion Auxiliary occupied the members Wednesday at the regular session in the Post room, Memorial Hall. Mrs. B. T. Hedges, president, conducted the session and received the monthly reports.

Arrangements were completed for the Christmas baskets which will be distributed Tuesday to several needy families of Circleville. Mrs. Charles Smith was named chairman of the committee for the project and will be assisted by Miss Hilda Burns and Mrs. Gladys Wiggins.

Mrs. Hedges will head the volunteer committee for the lunch which the auxiliary will serve at the Mistletoe Ball, December 27, at Memorial Hall.

The organization arranged to loan needed equipment to the Girl Scouts for their Twilight Tea Friday in the Post room.

The annual Christmas party followed the business hour when the group was entertained at a beautifully decorated table in the dining room. Centered with a Christmas tree hanging full of candy canes, opposite corners of the square table had the season's wishes, "Merry Christmas" and "Happy New Year", in Christmas cookies; the other corners held popcorn, balls, and Christmas candy. Tiny figures of Santa Claus and tripods of candy canes completed the holiday arrangement, red tapers in Christmas stars casting a soft glow over it.

Red Christmas bells were molded in the ice cream served with the lunch.

Mrs. Orin W. Dreisbach, Mrs. James Stout and Mrs. Lawrence Johnson were responsible for the julefide function.

Cleveland Mound Ace Turns In Great Work During Season; Wins 27 Games

By Pat Robinson

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—The official American League averages, released today, confirm what you already knew; namely, that Bob Feller, young fire-ball artist of the Cleveland Indians, was the ranking pitcher of the year.

If there is anyone who doubts it, he need consider only a few of Bob's accomplishments to be convinced.

Bob started the year by pitching his first no-hit, no run game against the Chicago White Sox on opening day, the first such opening day feat in history.

Rough Contest Ends With Score 35-30; Purcell's Shots Help

C.A.C.-Stone's Grill cagers played a ding dong roughhouse cage contest Wednesday evening, the local team winning 35-30 from the Gosnell Funeral Home quintet, classed as one of Columbus' best teams. The Athletic Club outfit halted a Gosnell uprising in the last quarter that brought the score to 31-30, Purcell canning a couple of buckets to sew up the affray.

Ronald Cree, former North High star appearing with the Gosnell outfit, was expelled from the game because of too much roughness and after too many arguments.

The Athletic Club led 18-18 at the half after trailing 6-0 shortly after the outset of the game.

Red Roush, ace C.A.C. defense man, was not in the lineup Wednesday.

C.A.C. reserves couldn't match the Marysville Moose and lost a 33-21 effort, the invaders having too much size and experience.

A large crowd was present, turkey, chickens and merchandise being given to its patrons by the Athletic Club.

CORNHUSKERS TO RESUME WORK IN PHOENIX, ARIZ.

LINCOLN, Neb. Dec. 19 — Nebraska's Cornhuskers shake the snow of Lincoln from their heels tonight and head for the balmy temperatures of Phoenix, Arizona, where they will set up an eight-day training camp before they move on to Pasadena for their Rose Bowl engagement with Stanford New Year's Day.

One more workout remained for the Huskers today on their snow-bound practice field, before they will be given a sendoff by the school on the first leg of their western invasion.

Major "Bliff" Jones, coach of the Huskers who has been driving his charges hard in Lincoln's cold with the idea of having them in the best possible condition before they reach sunshine land, indicated the Phoenix practice sessions may be less strenuous.

STANFORD COACH WORRIES OVER FLU AND WEATHER

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Dec. 19 — Coach Clark Shaughnessy was worried today over the plight of his undefeated and untied Stanford Indians, training for the Rose Bowl battle with Nebraska.

With the squad plagued by new flu victims and a steady downpour that converted the practice field into gumbo, the worried coach threw up his hands and exclaimed: "We can't get anything done here."

The team will leave December 26 for Pasadena. Heavy scrimmages, delayed all week, were scheduled for tomorrow.

Claude Purkitt, only experienced replacement for Right Tackle Bruno Banducci, went to the hospital to combat flu, while Ed Stamm, 215 pound left tackle, was ailing from the same malady.

Sugar Bowl Game Draws Much Interest January 1

By Walter L. Johns
UNDEFEATED and untied Boston college and Tennessee will draw the major share of football interest New Year's day when they clash in the Sugar Bowl game in New Orleans.

The Eagles, coached by Frank Leahy, trampled over 10 teams, some not as strong as others, and the Volunteers, coached by Major Robert Neyland, also smashed down 10 opponents by large scores. Both teams will enter the game even. Boston college utilizes a Notre Dame style of play with a well-balanced attack pepped up by the passing arm of Charlie O'Rourke. Tennessee uses the single-wing offense with climax runners available.

Heavy Eagle Line
The Boston college line is probably the heaviest in the business. The center, Gladchuk, weighs 240 pounds. Yaucoes, a tackle, weighs 253 pounds. Another tackle weighs 212. The heaviest man on the Volunteer line is Abe Shires, 212 pounds.

O'Rourke, the Boston college ace, weighs but 155, but is well-protected on his passing.

Tennessee has completed three seasons without a defeat, excepting their 14-0 beating by Southern California in the 1940 Rose Bowl game. Boston college is a second-year repeater, the Eagles also being beaten by Clemson in the Cotton Bowl game last season.

Expect Big Crowd

Boston college victims this season include Centre, Tulane, Temple, Idaho, St. Anselm, Manhattan, Boston U., Georgetown, Auburn and Holy Cross.

Tennessee has defeated Mercer, Duke, Chattanooga, Alabama, Florida, Louisiana State, Southwestern, Virginia, Kentucky and Vanderbilt.

The Sugar Bowl game was started in 1934. The stadium now seats more than 70,000. The Sugar Bowl game is preceded by a week of sports activities which include boxing, tennis, yachting and rowing, track, basketball and merrymaking.

Last year Texas A. & M. and Tulane met in the Sugar Bowl game, the Aggies winning by a 14 to 13 score.

DEERCREEK WINS HOT GAME WITH DARBY TOWNSHIP

Darby Township athletes forced the fast-stepping Deercreek Township quintet to turn on the speed in the last minute of play Wednesday evening to gain a 32-23 victory. With slightly more than a minute remaining Deercreek led by only one point, 24-23, but applied the pressure in the remainder of the contest.

The Deercreek boys led 12-10 at the half.

Deercreek reserves won also, 28-18.

Bing Crosby To Start Harmon On Air Career?

CHICAGO, Dec. 19—Tom Harmon, Michigan's all-American half-back, will play his last game of football as a member of the East eleven in the annual East-West Shrine Game in San Francisco New Year's Day, and from there go on to a radio and screen career under the sponsorship of Bing Crosby, the Chicago Herald-American stated today.

Asserting it had its information from an unimpeachable source, the Herald-American stated that Harmon "positively will not play professional football with the Bears or any other team," and added: "The Wolverine football star has stated repeatedly that he wants to be a radio announcer, but his ambitions go far beyond that vocation."

"Harmon's career is being sponsored and planned by Bing Crosby. As a matter of fact, Crosby, famous radio, screen and singing star, has been shaping Harmon's future for the last two years, in an informal way."

"Crosby and his brother and business-manger, Everett, will launch Harmon on his radio career next Thursday night. At that time, he will appear as a guest artist on Crosby's own chain program. Also Crosby plans to give Harmon an opportunity to try his hand as a motion picture actor, starting him with bit parts and moving him up gradually, as his performances merit it."

Under the Crosby sponsorship and by his own efforts, the newspaper said, Harmon will earn approximately $25,000 within a year, "with Bing and Brother Everett directing his activities."

Reviewing the history of the Harmon-Crosby association, the Herald-American said:

"Three years ago, Harmon, always an admirer of Crosby's artistry, wrote him a personal letter. He complimented Bing on a radio performance and told him of his own future hopes for success on the football field and in the business world. Bing, one of the nation's most rabid sports followers, answered the letter. From that time on, they corresponded regularly."

BADGERS, 'CATS BEATEN BY PITT, BUTLER OUTFITS

MADISON, Wis., Dec. 19—The winning streak of Wisconsin's basketball team was ended at three games today following the successful Big Ten invasion of Pittsburgh's Panthers, who handed the Badgers their initial defeat of the season last night, 36 to 34. It was the first game for Pitt.

Except for a drive by the Badgers late in the game, Pitt dominated the play throughout, sparked by Ed Straloski, veteran forward, who was high scorer with 19 points. The visitors led, 18-12, at the half, but the late spurt by Wisconsin provided a thrilling finish. Bobby Alwin, guard, was the Badgers' best point-getter, with five baskets and two free throws.

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 19 — A strong comeback in the final half and a basket just before the gun ended the game last night gave Butler a 32-31 victory over Northwestern's basketball team.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 19—Michigan's Wolverines, winners of their first two basketball games, take on Notre Dame tonight in quest of their third victory. The Irish have been defeated once, by Wisconsin.

ANGOTT GAINS EDGE

EASTERN COACHES USING 'DREAM' BACKFIELD UNIT

CHICAGO, Dec. 19—Hailed by their coaches as the strongest squad to represent the East since the annual Shrine Charity football game was inaugurated, the 22 members of the all-East gridiron team were enroute today to San Francisco, where they will play the western all-stars New Year's Day.

The eastern players met as a group for the first time in Evans-ton yesterday, then held a brief workout in Northwestern's Dyche Stadium under the eyes of Coaches Bernie Bierman of Minnesota and Andy Kerr and Fred Swan of Colgate.

The three coaches were highly pleased with the brief practice, but did not attempt to decide so early on their starting eleven. However, they did put together a backfield which had Tom Harmon of Michigan and Francis Reagan of Pennsylvania at the halves, Forest Evashevski of Michigan at quarter, and George Kracum of Pittsburgh at fullback. This probably comes as close to a "dream backfield" as any combination of stars.

ZIVIC, JENKINS FRIDAY NIGHT GO TO BE THRILLER

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—Welterweight Champion Fritz Zivic, of Pittsburgh, and Lightweight Champion Lew Jenkins, of Sweetwater, Tex., were pronounced all dressed up and ready today for a real good blood-letting in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. That one of them will be knocked senseless seems certain, and one or both of them may leave the ring in slight despair in other respects. Zivic is rough and cute and a fair hitter. Jenkins can punch a hole in you with either hand.

These seeming naturals sometimes develop into dull, uninteresting and wearysome things that just drag on to their appointed conclusion and this one could follow that pattern, but probably won't. Zivic likes rough going and sets that kind of pace, and Jenkins goes out for an early kill, knowing that if he doesn't get his man soon he's liable to be got himself. He's a scrawny bag of bones and doesn't go a distance any too well.

The wagering is on Zivic at around 9 to 5, due to his edge in experience and the weight advantage of about eight pounds that he will hold. No title will be at stake, and Zivic by agreement must come in at 143.

REAL ESTATE AUCTION

On State Route 23 five miles north of Circleville, 22 miles south of Columbus and 4 miles S. W. of Ashville at one o'clock

Tuesday, Dec. 31
1940

The following described farm to be sold to highest bidder as I now live in Cincinnati and devote my time to other interests.

273 ACRE FARM
IMPROVEMENTS—Comfortable brick house, barn, tool shed and corn crib, and large double corn crib (5,000 bu. capacity) with overhead granary.

LOCATION—Good neighborhood, close to 2 of the best market towns in Ohio. This is one of the most fertile and best producing farms in Pickaway County, about two thirds of which is Scioto River bottom and one third sandy clay loam suitable for growing various kinds of grain, vegetable and garden crops. Livestock has been fed on this land and all is in a high state of cultivation. Small branch provides running water for upland fields and lots.

This is a real opportunity for a grain and livestock farmer who wants a farm that will pay for itself, also a good rental investment as 1/2 of crops make a nice income.

With present prospects of possible inflation and low income on all kinds of Securities this farm should interest the conservative investor.

I have a party who offers to rent this farm cash rent that will pay 6% interest on purchase price up to $100.00 per acre.

TERMS—Purchaser to make a deposit of 10% of purchase price on day of sale and 40% upon delivery of deed and balance in one and two years.

Abstract will be furnished.

Councilmen Consider Possibility Of Operating Own Water System

ENGINEER TELLS STEPS REQUIRED

Request From Residents Of Huston Street For Lines Brings Action

Tabling its relief investigation after officially voting to continue under the present system of city-county relief administration, City Council, Wednesday night, renewed an old controversy with the Ohio Water Service Company and voted to meet as a committee of the whole to consider the possibilities of a municipally owned water plant. No date was set for the meeting.

The action arose from a petition read before Council, signed by eight residents of Huston Street, claiming that their wells had gone dry and asking that water service be extended from Maplewood west on Huston to the end of the street.

Service Director Leonard Morgan told Council he had talked with Harry Denman, manager of the water company, and had been informed that a line could not be extended into the area until next summer, and possibly not then.

The company's stand brought a verbal bombast from Councilman Ben H. Gordon, who maintained that the problem presented a definite fire hazard to the city, and that rather than chance a serious fire he would favor either "buying out" the water company or borrowing money in order that the city might build its own plant.

Browne's Advice Asked
Council asked Floyd G. Browne, Marion, state consulting engineer present at the meeting, for suggestions concerning the advantages of a city-owned plant.

Mr. Browne told Council that nearly ninety percent of the cities in the state were successfully operating their own water plants, and since money at the present time could be borrowed at a low rate of interest, he believed it an opportune time to start such a project.

Under a municipally owned plant, citizens could look forward to reductions in water rates, he said. It was pointed out that hydrant service for the city alone cost more than $10,000 a year. Also, the construction of an elevated water storage tank probably would better the city's fire insurance classification and bring about lower fire insurance rates.

Citizens, however, would lose the taxes now collected from the plant, Mr. Browne pointed out, since once a property becomes publicly owned, it disappears from the tax duplicate.

A motion from Frank Lynch that action on the matter be taken immediately and that Council meet as a committee of the whole to investigate the situation was passed unanimously.

Mr. Denman said Thursday he had no comment to make concerning Council's action.

Council agreed to accept the report of Mr. Lynch, chairman of the relief investigation committee, and officially voted to continue under its present system of city-county relief administration.

Although councilmen admitted the city could not possibly pay its $9,000 relief debt to the county, they promised to turn over all city funds not "earmarked" for purposes other than relief, to the county commissioners as part payment on the city debt.

Funds anticipated in 1941 include $8,000 in utility taxes and $6,000 in beer, malt and admission taxes. Councilmen believe it will cost approximately $21,000 to carry the city relief burden through 1941.

An ordinance amending the annual appropriation ordinance to include an additional $300 for materials and supplies for the sewerage disposal plant was passed by Council after the three-reading ruling had been suspended. The ordinance transfers funds from the disposal plant fund to the sewer fund, Service Director Morgan explained, the money being needed for repairs and flushing work on city sewers.

Money Confiscated

An ordinance asking for an additional $28 for supplies for the police department was passed. Solicitor Joseph Adkins informed Council the ordinance was necessary due to a recent ruling from the state Supreme Court that money taken from bookies or gamblers can not be confiscated. On the opening day of the Pumpkin Show, police officials arrested Joe Sergi, 28, Charles Brone, 30, and Gus Roumelotte, 32, all of Columbus, confiscating $107 they had in their possession and charging them with operating as race horse bookie pickup men.

From the confiscated money, the police department had spent $28 for supplies, before it was learned that the money had to be returned. Solicitor Adkins explained that the Supreme Court had decided that any cash taken in could be used only as evidence and at the completion of the case had to be returned to the owner.

A resolution authorizing the payment of $600 for the technical supervision given to the disposal plant by Consulting Engineer Floyd Browne was adopted. The State Department of Health requires that a consulting engineer be employed to inspect sewage disposal plants, necessitating the expenditure, Solicitor Adkins said.

Council completed its work on sewer rental rates for Circleville industries and instructed Solicitor Adkins to prepare an ordinance including them.

Harry Bartholomew, secretary of the Civil Service Commission, appeared before Council requesting that a regular meeting place for the commission be established in the city building. Councilmen referred the matter to the Safety Committee.
